What is an Approval Plan Publisher Profile?

We work closely with each of our Approval Plan libraries, first to select publishers from our full list to fit a library's collection, mission, and budget and later to adjust coverage based on experience. The result, an Approval Plan Publisher Profile—along with precise subject specifications—guides our bibliographers in their title selections for the library. Each library's up-to-date Approval Plan Publisher Profile is always available in hard copy and over the World Wide Web through GOBI.

How can YBP help a library to develop an Approval Plan Publisher Profile?

YBP bibliographers are in touch each day with publishers and their books and have at hand a library of publisher catalogs and other reference sources. It's part of our bibliographers' mission to make this expertise and information readily available to libraries. We systematically record data on publisher output and prices, for example, and can estimate the financial effect of changes in publisher coverage. We can also offer advice on publisher characteristics to help decide if a publisher is appropriate for a library's approval plan, drawing upon our own knowledge and upon the experience of other libraries. Our Core 100 List is useful to many small-to-medium-sized libraries to identify the publishers whose books are most critical to academic readers. Finally, we maintain specialized lists of publishers, drawn from the full YBP Approval Plan Publisher List, to help libraries devise suitable coverage. These are lists of publishers active in particular subject areas, such as business, science, education, literature, multi-cultural studies, and others.

How does YBP price approval plan publishers to libraries?

YBP treats over 50,000 new approval titles annually, more than any other vendor. Our customers purchase the great majority of these titles from use at publisher list price, minus library discount negotiated according to anticipated level of expenditure and subject mix of titles. One reason we offer so many titles on our approval plan program is that we treat some publishers who operate with non-standard business terms to vendors. We can do this by reflecting these terms in our own pricing to libraries. Titles from many association publishers, for example, are offered at list price plus a service fee (these are identified with an ^A). And, books from certain large commercial publishers whose discounts to vendors fall below the industry norm are sold to libraries at list price (identified with an ^L).

Are approval plan books always returnable?

Nearly always. Our standard policy, which applies to the great majority of titles we treat, is to accept books in resaleable condition returned within 120 days of YBP invoice date. Some publishers, however, such as associations, make it difficult or impossible to return books to them (these are identified on the list by an asterisk *). We offer these books on a non-returnable basis, announcing them with notification slips, but not shipping the books unless a library places an order.

How thoroughly does YBP treat Approval Plan publishers?

YBP, with few exceptions, treats every new title from every publisher on the YBP List.

Among university presses, we do not treat all paperback reprints published within ten years of the original edition. (We do treat paperbacks published simultaneously with hardcover editions.) Also, we do not treat certain Oxford University Press reference titles which OUP prefers to sell direct to libraries. There are no other university press exceptions to YBP approval plan treatment.

For commercial and other publishers, we follow the same course on paperback reprints. We treat introductory textbooks selectively. Although we treat many popular titles, we are selective toward the most ephemeral varieties, such as cartoon books and books of inspirational advice. We do not treat children's books from commercial publishers. Certain reference publishers discourage or forbid sales through vendors, and we do not treat some reference titles normally obtained through standing order. With continental European publishers such as Lang, Rodopi, and Brill, we selectively treat foreign-language titles and titles not routinely stocked in North America. While we treat many CD-ROMs from commercial publishers, we do not treat other software unless packaged with a book.

Otherwise, we treat every title from every publisher on the YBP Approval Plan List, making the YBP List a sturdy working tool for acquisitions and collections librarians alike.

Does YBP cover other publishers on the approval plan?

Yes, in two ways. First, many of the publishers on this list promote and sell the titles of other publishers, typically smaller publishers such as museums. Since these distribution arrangements are often short-lived and may effect only some of the distributed publisher's output, we don't attempt to record them on the YBP List. Approval plan libraries can control this category of publication with YBP's non-subject parameter for "distributed" titles. And, through our AP Plus! Program, YBP bibliographers identify worthy titles to profile from publishers normally beyond the scope of the YBP List. Most libraries receive notification slips for these titles.

Does the YBP List change?

Yes, we update the YBP Approval Plan Publisher List regularly, announcing changes via a listserv, as well as posting the changes on our home page at www.ybp.com.

We add publishers through our own scouting, but largely at the suggestion of librarians, who have always been our partners in developing the YBP List. We welcome these suggestions and will consider any publisher whose books are available in North America and pertinent to our customers, who releases at least five new monographs per year, and who offers standard business terms. When we add a publisher to the YBP List, libraries may instruct us whether or not to adjust their own Approval Plan Publisher Profile. Our default policy for approval libraries is to begin notification slip coverage for relevant publishers.

We remove from the YBP List inactive and defunct publishers, publishers whose terms or output have changed, and publishers whose books YBP customers no longer demand. Library Approval Plan Publisher Profiles are automatically adjusted when we delete a publisher from the YBP List.

How does YBP cover Associations?

Association and society publishers are a difficult but important segment of the publishing world. The YBP List includes dozens of the most important association and society publishers. Due to the business terms common among this type of publisher, most are handled on a non-returnable basis (indicated by NR), and YBP will send only notification slips to customers. Likewise, many association publishers make it impossible for YBP to offer discounts to customers, and their books must be sold with a service fee (these publishers are indicated by L).

Does YBP treat British and other foreign publishers?

Yes, most definitely. Approximately one-third of all titles we treat on our approval plan program are foreign in origin. YBP approval plan coverage includes all British and Canadian university presses, including the worldwide output of Oxford and Cambridge, in addition to British commercial and trade publishers such as Routledge, Blackwell, Boydell, and many others. Asian, Australian, and continental European publishers are also well represented on the YBP List. Kluwer, de Gruyter, Springer-Verlag, Elsevier, Prestel, Peeters, and Brill are just a few of the foreign commercial publishers on the YBP Approval & Notification Slip Plans Publisher List, alongside university presses such as Hong Kong, Melbourne, Queensland, New South Wales, Odense, and Toronto.

Can YBP offer retrospective publisher coverage?

YBP has extensive and highly flexible capabilities for libraries engaged in retrospective buying projects, whether small or large, or for libraries simply wishing to check holdings of books from particular publishers. We can conduct searches of our database over defined periods for books in certain subjects from a given publisher or publishers, or for all of a publisher's books. Output choices include lists, notification slips, and electronic files. Or, after establishing duplication controls, we can ship the actual books to a library.

How else does YBP share publisher information with libraries?

GOBI (Global Online Bibliographic Information), a database service on the World Wide Web, allows libraries to search YBP's entire title file. Users can construct publisher searches in a variety of ways.

The YBP Slip Plan enables libraries to enjoy many of the advantages of our approval plan program, but without automatic book shipments. Instead, weekly bibliographic slips alert library selectors to pertinent new titles according to customized publisher and subject profiles. New titles can also be reviewed online, through GOBI.

The YBP website (www.ybp.com) offers profiles of publishers and a variety of other useful information. E-STREAMS, for example, an online review journal for reference works in science, technology, and medicine, is the work of some of the country's most knowledgeable librarians. Academia, also available on our website, draws upon the contributions of our own bibliographers, who recommend new titles and new series, and who create the YBP Core 1000 list of notable recent titles.

Does YBP share library concerns with publishers?

YBP bibliographers and other company officials meet regularly throughout the year with sales representatives, managers, and executives from hundreds of publishing houses, in New Hampshire, in publisher offices, and at meetings such as Book Expo America, the American Library Association, and the Frankfurt Book Fair. Through these meetings YBP seeks constantly to bring to publishers' attention the issues and concerns important to librarians.
